

Centennial Greenway Detour Path: Until August 2017

<https://greatriversgreenway.org/greenway-alert-temporary-closures/>

From GRG Website

Centennial Greenway on Washington University Campus and Forest Park Parkway Bridge

The segment of the Centennial Greenway that travels through the Washington University campus is closed through August 2017 to accommodate construction on the Danforth campus. Washington University has established a detour that will take you around the campus via the sidewalk on Forsyth, a new dedicated bike and pedestrian walkway on Big Bend Blvd., and through the Ames Place neighborhood to connect with the existing greenway along Melville Ave. Click here for a detailed map of the detour.

In addition, the bicycle and pedestrian bridge crossing over Forest Park Parkway is under construction making the bridge temporarily inaccessible. Pedestrians and cyclists should follow the temporary detour outlined above or use Skinker Blvd. to connect to Forest Park, the Delmar Loop or the Washington University campus. These detours will add extra time to your walk or bike ride. Please be sure to plan your trip accordingly!

---

Cheryl Adelstein | Assistant Vice Chancellor for Community Relations and Local Government Affairs
Washington University in St. Louis | One Brookings Drive | Campus Box 1191 | St. Louis, MO 63130
 314.935.5014 |  cadelstein@wustl.edu